Dole Raps Kerry's War Claims

CRAWFORD, TEXAS | Former Republican Sen. Bob Dole suggested Sunday that John Kerry apologize for past testimony before Congress about alleged atrocities during the Vietnam War and joined critics of the Democratic presidential candidate who say he received an early exit from combat for "superficial wounds."

Dole, whose World War II wounds left him without the use of his right arm, also called on Kerry to release all the records of his service in Vietnam.

Dole told CNN's "Late Edition" that Kerry may have himself to blame for recent polls showing him losing support among veterans.

"One day he's saying that we were shooting civilians, cutting off their ears, cutting off their heads, throwing away his medals or his ribbons," Dole said. "The next day he's standing there, 'I want to be president because I'm a Vietnam veteran.' Maybe he should apologize to all the other 2.5 million veterans who served."

Kerry campaign spokesman Chad Clanton said: "It's unfortunate that Senator Dole is making statements that official U.S. Navy records prove false. This is partisan politics, not the truth." PETE YOST (AP)

Breakup Proposed For CIA

Senate Republicans weigh broad intelligence overhaul

WASHINGTON | Senate Intelligence Committee Republicans on Sunday proposed removing the nation's largest intelligence-gathering operations from the CIA and the Pentagon and putting them directly under a new national intelligence director.

Appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., the committee chairman, unveiled the most sweeping intelligence reorganization proposal offered by anyone since the Sept. 11 commission called for major changes.

Roberts

Calling the proposal "very different and very bold," Roberts acknowledged that full details of the plan, which has the support of eight GOP members of the intelligence committee, had yet to be shared with either the White House or with Senate Democrats.

The commission that investigated the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks called for a powerful national intelligence director who could force the nation's many agencies to cooperate. Up to now the debate has focused on how much power to give that official rather than on retooling agencies.

Roberts' plan would put the CIA's three main directorates — Operations, which runs intelligence collection and covert actions; Intelligence, which analyzes intelligence reports; and Science and Technology — into three new, separate and renamed agencies, each reporting to a separate assistant national intelligence director. It also would remove three of the largest intelligence agencies from the Pentagon. MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN (AP)

ANIMAL WATCH

Bear Guitar

Not even loud rock 'n' roll music could discourage a 350-pound bear that repeatedly raided plums and watermelons from a Grand Junction, Colo., couple's garden. Eldon and Gerry Nihues hung a radio from the plum tree, tuned it to a rock station and cranked the volume in hopes of scaring off the bear, which helped itself to about 50 watermelons, including 11 in one night. "It was this crazy rock stuff that was playing, but it didn't bother him," Gerry Nihues said. "He'd eat the plums right out from under where the thing was playing." State Division of Wildlife officers finally trapped the bear last week. They tranquilized it, tagged it and released it in a remote area. (AP)

In a Fowl Mood

Europe's biggest game bird — a Norwegian wood grouse — gave police officer Jorun Lyngstad one of the toughest fights of her career last week. Lyngstad was off-duty and riding her bike in the woods when the bird rammed her from the side and sent her flying through the air. Her foot stuck in one of the pedals, Lyngstad had to use the bike as a shield as she fended off attacks from the wood grouse, she told

Norway's Romsdals Budstikke newspaper. "It wouldn't give up," Lyngstad said. The bird finally relented and fled into the woods. Lyngstad suffered only minor scratches and a big bruise on her side where the wood grouse rammed her. (AP)

Turning the Other Cheek

The Brazilian Supreme Court last week quashed charges of obscene exposure levied last year against avant-garde theater director Gerald Thomas, who mooned an audience after an opera performance. After an August 2003 performance of "Tristan and Isolde" in Rio de Janeiro, Thomas shocked audience members and much of the cast by pulling down his pants and displaying his buttocks in response to jeers at the curtain call. The Supreme Court said it shelved the charges after deciding that Thomas' gesture "may have been rude and in bad taste" but not obscene. (AP)

GUANTANAMO BAY NAVAL BASE | One man allegedly worked as an al Qaeda accountant. Another, a poet, is accused of crafting terrorist propaganda. A third drove and protected Osama bin Laden. A fourth, a baby-faced Australian, fought with Afghanistan's ousted Taliban.

These Guantanamo prisoners will be the first suspected terrorists arraigned in preliminary hearings this week before their cases go to military commissions, or trials, in an unprecedented judicial process that foreign governments, lawyers and human rights groups have criticized.

While the maximum sentence the four men face is life in prison, the military commissions — the first in nearly 60 years since the United States tried German saboteurs — will have the power to sentence others to death, and there is no independent appeal process.

Only four of the Guantanamo detainees have been charged so far, while 11 others' charges are pending approval. Most of the men held in the camp have been refused access to attorneys.

All are considered enemy combatants, a classification that allots the men few legal protections under the Geneva Conventions.

Changes to Overtime Pay Rules to Take Effect

WASHINGTON | Paychecks could surge or shrink for a few or for millions of workers across the country starting Monday, when sweeping changes to the nation's overtime pay rules take effect.

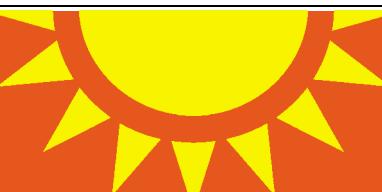

There is little agreement by the Bush administration, employer groups, labor experts and others on how many workers will gain or lose the right to overtime pay under the new rules in the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Estimates of how many workers will lose their overtime eligibility range from 107,000 to 6 million. Workers who could become newly eligible range from very few to 1.3 million.

The major overhaul, the first in more than half a century, is aimed at mostly white-collar workers.

The new rules are intended to limit workers' multimillion-dollar lawsuits, many of them successful, claiming they were cheated out of overtime pay for working more than 40 hours a week. LEIGH STROPE (AP)

Kraft Ordering Up Healthier Snacks

Food giant turns to diet-conscious products amid recent sales skid

NORTHFIELD, ILL. | These are the times that try cookie makers' sales.

A diet heavy on Oreos, macaroni and cheese, Oscar Mayer hot dogs and Philadelphia Cream Cheese, washed down by Maxwell House coffee and Kool-Aid, has fattened the bottom line for years at Kraft Foods Inc. But an eating revolution that has Americans seeking out healthier food, or at least trying to consume less, has forced the United States' largest food manufacturer to rethink the way it markets its products and begin reshuffling its lineup.

Growing obesity, the popularity of low-carbohydrate diets and worries about potentially artery-clogging trans fats all have combined to hurt sales at the company, not unlike the plight of other packaged-food makers. Kraft's Oreos, a long-time icon of snackdom, have fairly or unfairly become the bad poster child for trans fats and Atkins and South Beach diet devotees.

Kraft's push for healthier or diet-oriented food began last year when it moved to reduce the fat content in 200 products, cap portions for single-serve packaged snacks and quit marketing snacks at school.

Now the campaign is becoming more evident on U.S. supermarket shelves, which are being stocked with a variety of new snacks for diet-conscious shoppers.

New products are not the only part of the company's strategy.

Kraft is also cutting 6,000 jobs and closing as many as 20 plants this year in a $1.2 billion overhaul, putting the savings into new marketing plans. DAVE CARPENTER (AP)

Rash Cream Finds Fame in Its Name

COVINGTON, LA. | Retired Louisiana pharmacist George Boudreax hasn't needed advertising pitchmen to get the word out about his concoction to treat diaper rash. He just lets the name do it for him.

Boudreax's Butt Paste.

And a paste with any other name probably wouldn't have gotten attention from Oprah Winfrey, who featured Butt Paste on her show, and from late-night talk show host Jay Leno, who displayed a newspaper ad for Butt Paste on the "Tonight Show."

Boudreax has a serious product — marketing techniques aside — in a diaper rash ointment that he began mixing in his Covington pharmacy in the 1970s, which attracted a strong customer following.

Boudreax's privately held company did just under $2 million in sales last year and projects $4.5 million to $5 million in 2004 —

Najaf Negotiations, Fighting Drag On

Revered shrine said damaged in U.S. bomb raids

NAJAF, IRAQ | Explosions and gunfire shook Najaf's Old City on Sunday in a fierce battle between U.S. forces and Shiite militants, as negotiations dragged on for the handover of the shrine that the fighters have used for their stronghold.

Late Sunday, U.S. warplanes and helicopters attacked positions in the Old City for the second night with bombs and gunfire, witnesses said. Militant leaders said the Imam Ali Shrine compound's outer walls were damaged in the attacks.

The U.S. military, which has been careful to avoid damaging the compound, said it fired on sites south of the shrine, where militants were shooting from, and did not hit the compound wall.

Sunday's clashes in Najaf appeared more intense than in recent days as U.S. forces sealed off the Old City. But Iraqi government officials counseled patience, saying they intended to resolve the crisis without raiding the shrine, one of Shia Islam's holiest sites.

Senior government officials said last week an Iraqi force was preparing to raid the shrine within hours to expel the militants loyal to radical Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr, but interim Prime Minister Ayad Allawi quickly backed off that threat.

Such an operation would anger Shiites across the country and could turn them against the new government as it tries to gain legitimacy and tackle a 16-month-old insurgency.

Captors Release U.S. Journalist Kidnapped in Iraq

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | U.S. journalist Micah Garen, who was kidnapped in Iraq more than a week ago, was released Sunday in the southern city of Nasiriyah. Garen spoke to Al-Jazeera television, confirming his release.

Garen was interviewed by telephone by the station moments after an aide to Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr said he had been released.

On Thursday, the kidnappers released a video of Garen surrounded by armed, masked gunmen and threatened to kill him if U.S. troops did not leave Najaf, where they had been battling al-Sadr's militia, within 48 hours.

Garen and his Iraqi translator, Amir Doushi, were taken from a market in Nasiriyah on Aug. 13. (AP)

Armed Robbers Swipe 'Scream'

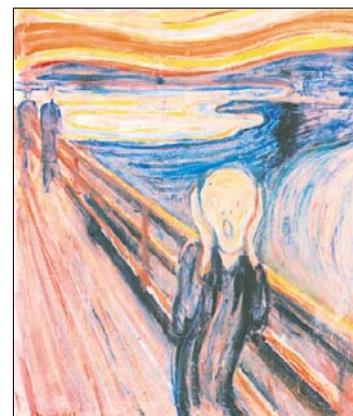

Famous Munch work stolen at gunpoint from museum in Norway

OSLO, NORWAY | Armed, masked thieves burst into a lightly guarded Oslo museum Sunday and snatched the Edvard Munch masterpiece "The Scream" and a second Munch painting from the walls as stunned visitors watched in shock.

It was the second time in a decade that a version of the iconic "Scream" had been stolen from an Oslo museum.

The thieves, who fled by car, also grabbed "Madonna," another priceless painting that along with "Scream" is part of Munch's "Frieze of Life" series painted in 1893-94, depicting themes of sickness, death, anxiety and love.

The thieves, wearing black masks, threatened an employee of the Munch Museum with a handgun before grabbing the paintings, easily snapping the wires that attached them to the wall, witnesses said.

Police spokeswoman Hilde Walsoe told AP that no one was injured during the robbery and that police had found the escape car — an Audi A6 — and fragments of the paintings' frames.

Honduras On Alert After al Qaeda Tip

TEGUCIGALPA, HONDURAS | Honduras tightened security at foreign embassies and declared a national terror alert after receiving information that al Qaeda was trying to recruit Hondurans to attack embassies of the United States, Britain, Spain and El Salvador, a government official said Sunday.

The heightened security was implemented three days ago after officials received reports of a plan allegedly targeting those countries' embassies here and abroad. Security Minister Oscar Alvarez said.

The purported al Qaeda plot was directly linked to the war in Iraq, which is why it targeted the United States, Britain and El Salvador, Alvarez said. However, it was unclear why Spain was targeted since Madrid pulled its troops out of Iraq earlier this year. (AP)

Sudan to Trim Paramilitaries

Reduction of fighters in Darfur comes ahead of peace talks Monday

KHARTOUM, SUDAN | In a goodwill gesture on the eve of peace talks, Sudan said Sunday it would reduce paramilitary forces in Darfur by 30 percent to try to ease tensions in the western region, where an 18-month conflict has killed an estimated 30,000 people.

The reduction of the volunteer force was ordered to build confidence ahead of African Union-sponsored peace talks starting Monday in Nigeria between government officials and two African rebel groups, said Sudan's state minister for interior affairs, Ahmed Mohamed Haroon.

Also, Nigerian President Olusegun Obasanjo, who also is chairman of the AU, said the organization should work with the Sudanese government to disarm the rebels. The AU is sending 300 troops to help protect monitors observing a little-respected cease-fire hammered out in April talks hosted by neighboring Chad.

It is unclear how many paramilitary forces operate in Darfur, but it is believed the reduction would amount to at least 18,000 paramili-

On Saturday, Sudan's government signed an agreement with the U.N. migration agency to ensure that more than 1 million people displaced by the Darfur violence can voluntarily return home — but cannot be forced to do so. MOHAMED OSMAN (AP)

Multiple Closings Set For Red Line in the Fall

WASHINGTON | Metro plans to shut down part of the Red Line three times this fall in preparation for the opening of a new station.

The transit agency announced plans to close Rhode Island Ave. and Brookland-CUA stations over the Labor Day weekend, Sept. 3-7. Officials plan two other shutdowns during the fall.

Crews will be conducting track work between Union Station and Fort Totten in preparation for the opening of the New York Ave.-Florida Ave.-Gallaudet U station, which is scheduled for completion in December.

According to Metro officials, Red Line service will operate between Shady Grove and Union Station and between Glenmont and Fort Totten. Metro will also run free shuttle buses between Union Station and Fort Totten.

The transit agency is encouraging riders to use the Green Line, which will run extra trains. (AP)

Hammer Used In Fatal Beating

HYATTSVILLE, MD. | Police on Sunday were investigating a fatal early-morning attack with a hammer.

Prince George's County Police said they found Jacob Adonis Paiz-

Garnica, 29, around 3:30 a.m. at the 8200 block of 14th Avenue.

Paiz-Garnica had gone outside to investigate the sound of breaking glass, police said, where they believe he was beaten with a hammer and cut with an unknown weapon.

He was taken to a hospital and later pronounced dead. (AP)

Since You Asked

Q What can be done about drivers without permits who park illegally in the reserved spots at Metro parking lots?

A Metro Transit Police patrol the lots, but drivers also should report violations, a Metro spokeswoman said. Call Transit Police at 202-962-2121, or notify the station manager.

Fines vary depending on the jurisdiction, but can be as high as $50 (in Prince George's County) or as low as $20 (in the District).

BAD REPUTATION: The Hotnights' raw, bratty dance-rock is part of Sweden's rock renaissance but has international appeal.

How Swede It Is

The midnight sun shines for Sahara Hotnights

NEXT BIG THINGS | Sahara Hotnights' blend of punk-inspired guitar riffs and frenetic rhythms manifest the rawer version of rock being produced in this Scandinavian country.

Success has been a measured climb for the band, which formed in 1994, from the first singles released on a local label to international success.

Success also came during the new Swedish musical renaissance, when bands such as the Hives started gaining international fame and the Cardigans re-exerted their influence — all of which challenged the perception of Swedish music as nothing more than bright pop jingles a la ABBA or the A-Teens.

By 2003, the quartet — guitarist-vocalist Maria Andersson, bassist Johanna Asplund, guitarist Jennie

Asplund and drummer Josephine Forsman — from Robertsfors in northern Sweden had logged months of touring across Europe and playing the major festivals, including Roskilde, and released the critically lauded "Jennie Bomb."

They also visited the United States, playing at CBGBs, the seminal music club along the Bowery in New York — the club where the Ramones, Television, the Voidoids and Talking Heads, among others, created American punk.

The Swedish government picked up the tab to send the band, along with other groups, to play the venue.

"That was our paid ticket to America," bassist Asplund said.

"Yeah, we got upgraded on the plane, too," added Andersson.

Asplund said the tour exposed new Swedish bands to a wider audience, but added it was mostly Swedish journalists abroad who attended, not the American music media.

"What's the point of going to the States to play when the Swedish media has more reporters there from Sweden than America?" she asked.

The sojourn paid off, though, with Rolling Stone naming them one of its "10 great new bands" and mainstream music media in Britain and the United States fawning over the band's 1970s-inspired punk sounds that evoke the Ramones, Blondie and the Clash.

Thanks in part to that adulation, the band recently completed a second U.S. tour to promote its new album, "Kiss & Tell."

Andersson said Sahara Hotnights is eager to bring its music to a wider audience, but she stressed the band is more concerned about falling into the trap of those groups that try to please everybody.

"You can hear that they try too hard to please people with the sound and we've never been into that," she said. MATT MOORE (AP)

Shun This Evil

FILM | If there was any life left in the satanic franchise, director Renny Harlin has snuffed it with "Exorcist: The Beginning," a cinematic abomination that's about as bad as you could possibly imagine a prequel to "The Exorcist" might be.

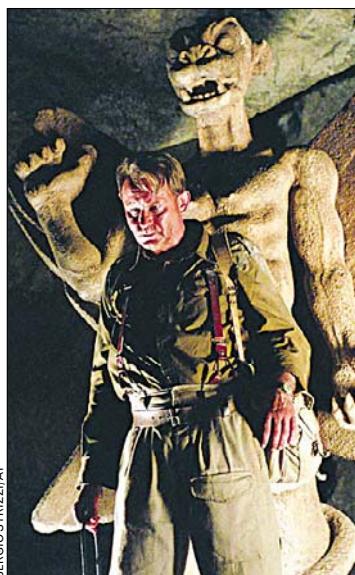

Three-fourths of the movie is boring as sin, the other quarter is loud, crude and awash in repugnant imagery. There are no true scares, only clatter, commotion, guts and gore. Often, what happens on screen is almost dreamlike in its incomprehensibility.

The story — the priest of "The Exorcist" as a younger man in his first encounter with Satan — holds no intrigue compared to the movie's behind-the-scenes tale.

Launched after "The Exorcist" reissue proved a hit, the prequel seemed cursed. Original director John Frankenheimer left the project and died shortly thereafter, and star Liam Neeson quit.

Stellan Skarsgard replaced Neeson, with Paul Schrader directing, but the producers didn't think the movie he made was scary enough. That version was shelved, Harlin came aboard, the story was tweaked, roles were recast and the movie was shot again, with Skarsgard still starring.

His Father Merrin, (Max von Sydow in the 1973 original) has given up the priesthood, his faith shattered by horrors he witnessed and was forced to participate in under the Nazis. A British collector entices Merrin to join a dig in Kenya, where a Roman Catholic church has been discovered.

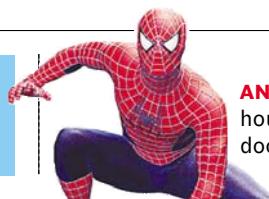

The performances are either piercingly shrill or hushed to the point of narcolepsy. Harlin tries to emulate William Friedkin's grossly terrifying original, but all his images capture are the gross part.

Someone send for an exorcist to cast Harlin out of Hollywood.

AN INESCAPABLE WEB: "Spider-Man 2" will debut on DVD on Nov. 30 with about 10 hours of extra features, said Columbia Tri-Star. Bonuses include a 12-part making-of documentary, a multi-angle feature on the climactic pier battle and a blooper reel.

New Life for TV Losers

REINCARNATION | "Simpsons" boxed sets? "Friends"? "Sex and the City"? Naturally. But what about NBC's failed comedy "Lateline," a parody of late-night news that featured real Washington politicos in cameos?

When the series netted miserable ratings in its 12-episode life span in 1999, the show's star, co-creator and co-executive producer, Al Franken, didn't need to be told it wasn't coming back.

Turns out it wasn't over for "Lateline." On Tuesday, Paramount Home Video is releasing the complete series — including seven episodes that never aired — in a three-disc boxed set.

It's just one example of a surprisingly strong stream of this business: underachieving shows that find new life on DVDs.

Universal has sold more than 150,000 copies, at $119 apiece, of the 1978-'80 series "Battlestar Galactica," which aired just 24 episodes on ABC. The Season 1 collection of "Sledge Hammer!," which staggered through a 41-episode run in the late '80s, has sales approaching 100,000 copies, for about $30 apiece.

It may just be network programmers' itchy trigger finger that spurred this TV-on-DVD torrent. Shows often get pulled off the air just at the point when they're entering the consciousness of many viewers.

While the all-time bestselling TV collection is Season 1 of "The Simpsons," No. 2 is the first season of a far-less-successful Fox series: "The Family Guy," which sold 1.86 million copies.

That persuaded Fox to order fresh episodes of the Seth MacFarlane-created animated series for the 2005 season.

Research by several studios has shown that consumers are drawn to TV DVDs because they're commercial-free, they make it easy to watch as many episodes as you choose, and because they're a new form of collectible.

'Exorcist: Beginning' leads, then lags, as small films do big biz

BOX OFFICE | God vs. Satan cast out space creatures at the box office.

Demon thriller "Exorcist: The Beginning" debuted as the No. 1 weekend movie with $18.2 million, displacing "Alien vs. Predator," which tumbled to No. 4 with $12.5 million, studio estimates showed Sunday.

After two strong weeks in limited release, the shark tale "Open Water" expanded nationwide and came in at No. 5, lifting its domestic total to $14.8 million.

Another popular limited-release flick, Zach Braff's romantic comedy "Garden State," also went into fairly wide release, taking the No. 10 spot and pushing its total to $6.7 million.

Slapstick comedy "Without a Paddle" opened in second place with $13.7 million.

Though trashed by critics, "Exorcist: The Beginning," had solid appeal for horror fans, who typically turn out in droves on opening weekend.

The movie could follow the same path as "Alien vs. Predator," whose $12.5 million second weekend was down a steep 67 percent from its opening gross. Receipts for "Exorcist" dropped sharply from Friday to Saturday, a sign of poor word of mouth from early viewers. Most new movies do more business on their first Saturday than on Friday. BEATS WORKING: Shannen Doherty will bring her bad-girl smirk to Fox's "North Shore" Sept. 20. She joins the cast at the Hawaiian luxury hotel where the show is set as devious Alexandra Hudson, an ambitious minx with, yes, a shocking secret!

The Reality Thing

REAL TIME | In one corner, the Fox television empire. In another, cable executives who once ran the USA network and E! Entertainment Television.

They're fighting to see who can establish a television network devoted exclusively to the reality genre.

With shows like "Survivor" and "American Idol" among TV's biggest hits, it was inevitable that someone would devote a network to reality. The question is whether people will want to revisit their favorite reality shows like they do comedies and dramas.

Both networks are already developing and acquiring programming.

OLD NEWS: We've seen "Survivor" before; do we want to see it again?

Larry Namer, the former E! executive who is partner with USA founder Kay Koplovitz in Reality 24-7, sees Reality 24-7 as a destination for fans. He helped create E!'s "Talk Soup," which distilled memorable moments of talk shows. He plans to do the same for reality, with gossip about personalities, making-of and "where are they now?" features.

After hearing his rival claim that Fox Reality stole his idea, Fox Networks Group president Anthony Vinciguerracite a date: April 11, 2002. That's when he brought his executives in to brainstorm ideas about new networks, and Fox Reality was born. Viewers won't be able to see Reality 24-7 until later this year, or the Fox Reality Channel until early 2005.

CAN WE MEET BOB DOLE?

THRILL OF A LIFETIME (10 p.m., Biography Channel) allows ordinary folks to meet their small-screen idols. Kim Bondi, 32, has an emotional bond to Bob Barker and "The Price Is Right." So her family arranges for her to be on the show and make her dream come true. "Thrill" also arranges for another woman, Gillian Seidler, to meet her TV crush, Jamie Oliver of "Naked Chef" fame. "Thrill" is a throwback; it does a good job of capturing the giddy excitement of irrational adoration.

WHERE IS HE NOW?

Remember Osama bin Laden? TARGETED (8 p.m., History) devotes two hours to the hunt for the terrorist and profiles his rise to power in the jihad movement.

GOALS | While you're toiling away at a job you find less than desirable, all those well- and overpaid executives above you are probably doing the same, according to a survey.

Business Week magazine polled 500 business executives last month about their positions, and nearly three-quarters (72 percent) conceded they were not in their "dream job."

So what would they rather be doing?

Nearly a third wanted to be some sort of entertainment/events producer, followed by winemaker or brewmaster (30 percent). Others

Friendlier Skies | Flight Attendant

KRISTAN BARAN, 30

JOB: Flight attendant for Dulles-based Independence Air, which took to the skies in June.

SALARY: Starts at around $16 for every in-flight hour, plus $1.55 per hour while you're on the clock.

EDUCATION: Bachelor's in sociology from University of Northern Colorado

WHAT SHE DOES? Baran works about five flights a day, making sure passengers reach their destination hydrated, well-snacked and hopefully in a good mood. Yes, she has to smile all the time, but that's not a chore: "There's always somebody there that's going to do something or tell you a story that's going to make your day just so great." If the day ends in another city (Baran likes landing a night in New York or Florida), the airline puts the crew up in a hotel.

WOULD YOU WANT HER JOB? The flight attendant tends to double as the on-board psychologist/punching bag, lending an ear to passengers' grumbles and getting blamed for bad weather or airport closures.

With room for just 50 passengers per plane and one attendant to keep them happy, she spends most of the time on her feet—in heels. Schedules are assigned based on seniority.

HOW YOU CAN GET HER JOB: More than anything, enthusiasm and compassion will put you ahead. "You can't ever be taught how to be nice," Baran said. "You can't be taught how to be genuine. It's something that you just have to learn through life."

FOR MORE INFORMATION: They're hiring. Apply at www.flyi.com.

The number of Olympic games that the U.S. women's basketball team has won in a row following its 100-62 victory over China on Monday. The team has already secured first place in Group B. Who said the men's squad is the "Dream team?"

U.S. sprinter wins 100m; Greene gets bronze

TRACK | Justin Gatlin ran the race of his life Sunday night, barely holding off the fastest Olympic 100-meter field in history to win the gold in 9.85 seconds.

Francis Obikwelu of Portugal got the silver in 9.86. Defending champion Maurice Greene won bronze in 9.87, falling short in his quest to crown himself the "greatest sprinter of all time."

A third American, Shawn Crawford, was fourth in 9.89. Five runners broke the 10-second mark, and world champion Kim Collins finished in exactly 10 seconds.

"The race was magnificent. The only way I knew the race was great is because I watched it on TV," Gatlin said. "I couldn't even feel the race. I felt that I was 100 miles in front of everybody. It was so close, but that's what I felt."

It was the first time in Olympic history that five men broke 10 seconds in one race. ROB GLOSTER (AP)

American Juggernaut One Win From the Gold

SOFTBALL | One win from gold. One shutout from perfection.

The U.S. softball team — unbeaten, unscorched and almost unbelievable — rolled to its eighth straight shutout Sunday, 5-0 over Australia, and into the gold medal game.

To take their third straight Olympic title, the Americans will have to beat the Australians one more time, who qualified by beating Japan 3-0 later Sunday.

American Lisa Fernandez, pitched a three-hitter, Crystl Bustos drove in two runs and Natasha Watley had three more infield singles Sunday.

The team has won 78 straight.

Lisa Fernandez pitched a three-hitter for the U.S. in Sunday's 5-0 shutout.

The Olympic numbers they've piled up are absurd: a 46-0 run differential; 49 scoreless innings, a 0.00 ERA. TOM WITHERS (AP)

American Shooter Off-Target Aiming For a Gold Medal

SHOOTING | Matt Emmons was focusing on staying calm. He should have been focusing on the right target.

Emmons fired at the wrong one with his final shot Sunday, a shocking mistake that cost the American a commanding lead in the Olympic 50-meter three-position rifle final and ruined his chance for a second gold medal.

Leading by three points and needing only to get near the bull's-eye to win, Emmons fired at the target in lane three while shooting in lane two. That dropped Emmons to eighth place and lifted Jia Zhanbo, of China, to the gold. (AP)

U.S. Gymnasts Add 3 More Medals

Hamm upset over S. Korean's planned appeal

GYMNASICS | Three got medals and Paul Hamm got mad.

The United States upped its gymnastics medal haul to seven Sunday night, the most since the Americans won 16 in 1984.

Terin Humphrey won silver on the uneven bars and Courtney Kupets won the bronze. Annia Hatch's silver came on the vault behind Romania's Monica Rosu.

Hamm failed to medal in either of his events, finishing fifth on floor and sixth on pommel horse.

But he was more upset with the International Gymnastics Federation, which said Saturday that a scoring error wrongly gave him the gold in the all-around over Yang Tae-young of South Korea. Though FIG says it cannot change the results, the South Koreans plan to appeal to the Court of Arbitration for Sport in hopes of getting a duplicate gold medal.

"Reviewing videotape isn't even allowed in the rules," Hamm said. "Rules can't be changed after the competition is over. Right now, I personally feel I shouldn't even be dealing with this." NANCY ARMOUR (AP)

BRONZED: Courtney Kupets, who won the bronze in the uneven bars on Sunday, was one of three Americans to win a medal during the individual competitions.

U.S. Ends 40-Year Dry Spell in Rowing

ROWING | Jason Read wanted an American flag in the boat for the U.S. eight crew's first Olympic victory lap — and gold medal — in 40 years.

When Read beckoned, one excited fan hurdled a barrier and charged into the lake, swimming out to hand off the Stars and Stripes to crew members, who took turns holding it aloft as they rowed along grandstands of cheering fans.

The victory capped an Olympic regatta in which the U.S. women's eight won silver — the first medal

Redskins On Right Track

Brunell continues to impress, but Ramsey will start on Friday

REDSKINS | The starting quarterback produced scoring drives, a rarity in the first two games. The rookie safety produced jarring hits and turnovers, again. Then there was the running game, which produced a night reminiscent of Joe Gibbs' previous Redskins teams.

In Saturday's 17-0 victory over the Miami Dolphins, the Redskins did just about everything right, a change from the previous week's overtime loss to Carolina.

Mark Brunell again outplayed Patrick Ramsey in the race for the starting quarterback job. Brunell completed 7-of-9 passes for 79 yards while Ramsey was 3-of-8 for 41 yards.

Gibbs said Ramsey will start against St. Louis on Friday and no decision will be made on the regular-season starter until after that game.

Rookie free safety Sean Taylor also earned another start after causing, and recovering, a first-quarter fumble that led to a 63-yard Redskins scoring drive.

In three preseason games Taylor has intercepted two passes, caused two fumbles and recovered one. (AP)

Hewitt Is the Last Man Standing at Legg Mason

TENNIS | Second-seeded Lleyton Hewitt beat Gilles Muller of Luxembourg 6-3, 6-4 in the Legg Mason Classic final on Sunday and won his third title of the year.

After victories in Sydney in January and Rotterdam in February, Hewitt became the first Australian to win in Washington since Tony Roche in 1972.

Muller eliminated top-seeded Andre Agassi on Saturday to reach his first final but struggled to handle the early pressure applied by Hewitt.

"I was maybe a little too tight today," said Muller, who had won just one ATP match before the tournament. "It was so difficult to play. It was like I was playing against the wall. He was running so fast, he was running everywhere. I kind of lost a lot of confidence."

Added Hewitt: "I'd love to be

Jays Stay Hot at the Orioles' Expense

BASEBALL | After finding their lost hitting stroke in Baltimore, the Toronto Blue Jays headed home looking to sustain the positive feeling created by their first road sweep of the season.

If the Blue Jays are fortunate, they will avoid duplicating what happened to the Orioles, who learned that momentum can be fleeting — even when you're playing at home.

Eric Hinske and Vernon Wells homered, and Toronto completed a three-game sweep of the sinking Orioles with an 8-5 victory Sunday.

Miguel Tejada went 4-for-5 with a homer, three doubles and five RBIs for the Orioles, who had won 11 of 13 before being outscored 51-18 during an 0-6 homestand against Oakland and Toronto. Tejada boosted his league-leading RBI total to 113.

But that was little consolation to the Orioles, whose unexpected collapse at home dropped them eight games under .500. (AP)

Parents of multiple-birth babies learn to invent as they go

It wasn't long after Joel Pekay's triplets came home from the hospital that he realized the average retail store's baby section didn't understand the needs of multiple-birth parents.

By the time the triplets were 3 weeks old, Pekay had developed Baby Log, a spiral-bound checklist that helped multiple caregivers keep track of which baby ate when and so forth.

Joel Pekay decided to sell it to other parents, via the Internet and his personal Web site, www.tripletpress.com.

Twins, triplets, quadruplets and even larger multiple births present huge challenges to parents who are trying to take care of several children at once. Products designed for single babies are often of little help. But some of these parents end up inventing products that other parents are eager to buy.

Many of these parent/inventors were showing their products recently at a convention in St. Louis for families of multiples.

allow more than one baby to sleep in a single crib.

The company recently purchased a company that made the Anna Nursing Pillow, which allows mothers to breastfeed two babies at once. That product was invented by a mother of twins.

The market for multiple-baby products isn't as large as the general baby goods market, but there is still a demand.

Tamatha Hicks felt like the mother of triplets after having to care for her own newborn son as well as twin nieces.

Her solution was the Bottle Bundle — a U-shaped pillow with an elastic loop that can hold a baby bottle for hands-free feeding. Hicks now owns Little Wonders, which sells about 10,000 Bottle Bundles a year, mostly to parents of multiples. STEPHANIE V. SIEK (AP)

Washington Post reporter DANA MILBANK was online Friday from Crawford, Texas, where President Bush is vacationing | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

How unique is the Bush-Cheney campaign's control of audiences?

All campaigns make some effort to control access to the candidates' events. There's little to be gained by inviting in a bunch of hecklers. The Bush strategy appears to go a bit beyond the usual though, with some RNC events requiring attendees to sign a loyalty oath before getting a ticket.

I don't understand where Kerry gets off asking the president to condemn the Swift Boat vets when he and the liberal interest groups have been attacking the president for months.

Kerry gets off asking the president to condemn the Swift Boat group because Kerry himself, at Sen. John McCain's urging, condemned a MoveOn ad attacking Bush's National Guard service.

But in a larger sense, what you're seeing from Kerry is a much belated realization that they shouldn't be on the defensive on this issue, as they were a couple of months ago when the whole debate was about whether Kerry threw away his ribbons or his medals. It's clear the issue isn't going away right now, but it's not clear how it will cut.

Is Crawford better or worse than Kennebunkport, Maine?

Crawford is way better. Actually, we stay in nearby Waco. It has four — count 'em four — Starbucks locations now, a big Barnes & Noble and a state-of-the-art gym we can use at Baylor University. Uncle Dan's brisket and the Gut-Pack at Vitek's BBQ beat a Maine lobster roll any day. And there's never any traffic on the way to the beach here. OK, so there isn't a beach here. But there's Cricket's Bar & Grill, and they serve Jaegermeister "liquer" — on tap!

Why is Colin Powell not attending the Republican National Convention?

Secretaries of state are supposed to be above the fray, so I doubt there was ever consideration of Powell speaking in New York.

Kerry Should Come Clean

AFTER ATTACKING the motives of the group Swift Boat Veterans for Truth, the Kerry campaign is now trying to censor the group's opinions by demanding the withdrawal of its television ads. If John Kerry truly believes these allegations are false, then why doesn't he simply release all of his military records and put this matter to rest.

Celebrity Milks Medical Condition for All It's Worth

JANE PAULEY, whose syndicated talk show debuts Aug. 30, reveals she was treated for bipolar disorder in her new memoir, "Skywriting: A Life Out of the Blue," excerpted in People magazine. She writes that the illness was triggered by a rare reaction to prescription drugs prescribed for a case of hives. Pauley said she's now free of mood swings. "I had already decided that if only one good thing came out of this mess it would be the opportunity to talk about the disease," said Pauley. Her memoir hits bookstores Tuesday. (AP)

BROOKE SHIELDS, 39, will be joining the cast of the Broadway revival of "Wonderful Town" on Sept. 28 as writer Ruth Sherwood, a young woman from Ohio determined to make it big in New York. The musical, which has a score by Leonard Bernstein, Betty Comden and Adolph Green, was first performed on Broadway in 1953 with Rosalind Russell in the leading role. Shields has worked on Broadway before, taking over for Rosie O'Donnell as Rizzo in the revival of "Grease." (AP)

An Ohio car dealership has apologized to Gov. ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER for using a photo from "The Terminator" in ads without permission. Fred Martin Motor Co. issued a written apology and agreed to pay an unspecified amount to Arnold's All-Stars, an after-school program, according to a statement released Friday. Schwarzenegger sued the dealer in 2002 for violating his right of publicity. A federal appeals court in California dismissed the case in June. The ads invited customers to

Jada Pinkett Smith, JULIETTE LEWIS and their respective bands — Pinkett's Wicked Wisdom and Lewis' Juliette and the Licks — performed at the opening of the Hard Rock Cafe inside Foxwoods Resort and Casino in Mashantucket, Conn., on Thursday. Pinkett Smith christened the restaurant by smashing a guitar on the red carpet. It took her three tries. "I put all my sexual energy into music," said Lewis, who called the Foxwoods gig "one little step" for Juliette and the Licks. The band can next be seen at the Voodoo Music Experience in New Orleans in October. (AP)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Focus on unity more than those issues which may cause a rift at home or at the workplace. If you have to work, use extra care.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Self-confidence is essential, and if it's not the real thing then you must be able to fake it well enough to display confidence.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Teamwork is sure to pay off, but you may find that your greatest rewards lie in solitary efforts that help the group in the long run.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) While you are enjoying yourself, a rival — probably a Cancer or Scorpio native — is getting ready to do battle with you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can reap even more rewards from an already favorable situation simply by giving your imagination more free reign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Avoid going off on a tangent of any kind; it is necessary to stick to the matter at hand and focus squarely on solving a problem.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Concentrate on domestic affairs and issues. Do what you can to increase the amount of time you spend with family members — on and off the job.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something that happens early in the day will remind you of better times — but also that good times can very well return.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) That which seems most difficult may actually be something you can accomplish with relative ease — provided your attitude is intact.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is every likelihood that you will get along better with a rival than you have — thanks to a change in your own thinking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You can make a show of things and win the admiration and loyalty of those who haven't committed one way or another before now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Discuss career issues with caution during the first part of the day. You don't want to reveal your hand prematurely, and give up your advantage.
